Stock Up Early on Garden Needs

It makes good sense to stock up early on materials and equipment to be used in vegetable disease control. There is always a possibility of a shortage of the particular fungicide you want, and if you don't wait until the last minute you will avoid the inconvenience and time wasted in making a special trip for materials when the time comes to use them.

Zineb is a good all-around fungicide. Maneb is another somewhat newer one which is especially effective in controlling tomato diseases. Both of these materials are organics and have largely replaced copper for the control of most vegetable diseases. They are milder and cause less injury to vegetables, and give somewhat better control than the old recommended fungicides. However, copper is still as good as it ever was and if you prefer it, use it.

If you are not familiar with the appearance of diseases and insects, it might be most practical to buy one of the general-purpose spray or dust mixtures. They save time and trouble, since a single treatment will control both diseases and insects. Mixtures should contain a fungicide, such as zineb or maneb, and two different insecticides, such as malathion and methoxychlor or DDT. Always read the label on the container to see whether the analysis calls for the particular ingredient you need, and also to see the precautions and directions of the manufacturer. Most of these materials should be applied at least 7 days before harvesting, so there will be no harmful residues on the vegetable when eaten.

Sometimes gardeners want to mix their own dusts. However, generally, it is better to buy a ready-prepared dust, since it is hard for the average gardener to mix his own thoroughly.

If materials are left over from the preceding season, the chances are it will be all right to use them if they have been kept enclosed in tight containers and have not been exposed to direct sunlight.

WILLIAMS - IRBY

An altar of summer flowers in white lighted candles was the scene on Friday night at the Central Baptist Church, Appomattox, when Miss Gaynelle Irby, of Appomattox, and La Marque, Texas, became the bride of Reverend Crawford Williams.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Irby, of Appomattox and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Williams, of Lancaster, South Carolina. Given in marriage by her brother, the bride wore a full length dress of lace over satin. The boat neckline filled with seed pearls matched the lace cap of seed pearls to which the veil of illusion was attached. The sleeves ended in a point over the hands and a cummerbund set the dress off. She carried a white orchid atop her white Bible.

Miss Anne Irby, sister of the bride, and only attendant, wore an ivy shoulder full length dress of green taffeta with a matching band and head dress. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

The Reverend Roger Snipes, of Lyman, South Carolina, served the groom as best man.

Ushers included Mr. Stuart Puckette and Mr. Marquist Britton.

Miss Joan Harvey at the piano, and Mrs. Roger Snipes as soloist, furnished the program of wedding music, including "Because" as the couple waited at the altar, and "The Lord's Prayer" while they knelt for the benediction.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Reverend J. R. Darden and Reverend R. T. Davis.

After the wedding the couple left for a wedding trip through the Valley of Virginia. They will return to their home near Kershaw, South Carolina, where Mr. Williams is pastor.

The bride is a graduate of Bluefield College and the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. Mr. Williams graduated from Carson-Newman College and received his B. D. degree from the New Orleans Theological Seminary, New Orleans, Louisiana.
